Congressman 'Heartened'
 Congressman Carl R. King, Democratic primary victor who won his nomination bid to Congress from the 17th District, took time out today from his official duties in Washington to thank the voters who gave him their stamp of approval in last Tuesday's election.
 In a prepared statement the legislator said:
 "I am most heartened that voters in our district have shown that they are satisfied with my representation of them in Washington, and I pledge continuance of my best efforts in behalf of legislation most beneficial to our district, our state, and our nation."
 "While my duties in Washington precluded my personal participation in the primary campaign, I hope an early adjournment of Congress will allow my return to the district to personally thank my thousands of loyal supporters."
 "It is my purpose to continue to act in the best interests of the majority of the people of our district and to again merit the trust and confidence of the voters in the November general election."
